

Red Riding Hood Synopsis

Stephen and Bridget are brother and sister enjoying a sleepover at their grandma's house. They are tucked up in bed but Stephen feels restless and cannot sleep.

He plays with a torch in the dark and then convinces Bridget to tell him a story. She chooses Little Red Riding Hood.

Bridget and Stephen tell the story, they sing and dance, and wear an assortment of clothes from grandma's wardrobe to represent the characters.

Bridget is hungry and has taken some donuts from the kitchen as a midnight snack.

In the story, Red Riding Hood makes the journey through the dark forest to her grandma's house but the clever wolf is waiting in disguise in grandma's bed.

The wolf eats grandma and Red Riding Hood, who are represented by the donuts. Luckily the woodcutter arrives and rescues them from the wolf's tummy.

Now that Bridget and Stephen are finally tired and full of donuts they can drift off to sleep, cosy in their bed as the snow falls outside.

Music

You can listen to the songs from the play in advance and sing-along when you come to watch!

Julian Butler's songs can be found here:

<https://www.lakesidearts.org.uk/children-and-families/event/3843/red-riding-hood.html>